

MEXICANS DRILLING TO FIGHT WITH U. S.

Newspapers Refer to Carranza Note as "Slap in Face for Uncle Sam."

EL PASO, June 14.—Newspapers brought to El Paso from several cities in the interior of Mexico showed an increasing animosity for Americans. Editorials in most of them referred to Carranza's recent note as a "slap in the face for Uncle Sam," while stories of volunteer corps organizing for duty in case of international trouble were frequent.

The principle article in a leading newspaper of Saltillo, a semi-official organ, pointed out that while "the Colossus of the North" has an advantage in numbers and supplies, the history of the Spanish peninsula campaign shows that poorly equipped troops were able to break down the great army of Napoleon and guerrilla tactics now should be able, in the event of intervention, to wear out the forces of the United States.

Today's reports to local mining companies from their representatives in Chihuahua City and Parral indicated that the antagonism against the United States continues, and that minor demonstrations are frequent but that the military had the people sufficiently under control to prevent violence.

Apprehension here for the safety of Americans in those cities abated with the receipt of these dispatches, although a number of rumors, all apparently without foundation, that several Americans had been killed in Chihuahua City, were current here yesterday.

That some Carranza officials are behind the sudden outbreak of anti-American feeling in the republic was the assertion today of a widely informed Mexican upon his arrival from the interior.

He said that they are supporting agitators for the double purpose of creating support and sympathy for the Carranza government in its financial and industrial troubles and embarrassing the American Administration.

In this way, he explained, these officials hope to force the withdrawal of the American troops, which would be a diplomatic victory for the de facto government. But he added, while these officials have paid the agitators they have kept the mob well in hand to disprove any charge of anarchy in the republic.

Reports to the Mexican consulate here today, told of the capture at Temascal, Chihuahua, of Col. Valentin Vasquez and Lieut. Alejandro Arrascaeta, Villa officers. The capture of the bandits, together with that of Cruz Dominguez, recently reported from Chihuahua City, was described as the most important since the capture of Pablo Lopez, it being pointed out that they have been the sole remaining outlaw leaders of importance in Southern California.

President Will Refuse Demand For Withdrawal

The State Department has called the attention of the Carranza de facto government to the anti-American outbursts in Mexico, the raid by Mexicans on the T. A. Coleman ranch near Laredo, and particularly to the fact that the body of one of the men killed in the pursuit of the outlaw band has been identified as that of Lieutenant Colonel Villareal, an officer of the Carranza army.

In bringing this matter to the attention of the de facto government, through James Linn Rodgers, special agent of the State Department at Mexico City, the State Department calls attention to the fact that Lieutenant Colonel Villareal, at the time of the raid, wore the uniform of an officer of the Carranza army and carried papers that clearly established his identity. An explanation is sought, so that this government may know whether the Carranza government countenances participation by its officers in raids on American territory.

The preliminary act of the new American note to Carranza government, in response to its demand of May 22 for the withdrawal of American troops from Mexican soil, has been completed, but the note will not be sent immediately, according to statements made in official circles today. Indications now are that the note will not be sent until after Saturday or Monday, and until after the President has been renominated by the St. Louis convention.

It is now definitely established that President Wilson's reply will not only refuse flatly to meet the demand for immediate withdrawal of the American forces, but that it will also reiterate the insinuations of the de facto government that the American forces are in Mexico for political reasons.

President Wilson's answer will recall the fact that when the American forces were first sent into Mexico this government, through statements issued at the White House, and by the State and War Departments, stated plainly that the American forces were sent into Mexico for the sole purpose of capturing or dispersing Villa and his bandits, and that the American forces would be withdrawn when that had been accomplished, and also when the Carranza government was able to control the situation. The American reply will assert that there has been no departure from that announced policy.

Lone Woman Starts Debate on Suffrage

Chamber of Commerce Has Lively Discussion Following Miss Mary O'Toole's Protest.

FAILS TO GAIN MOOTED POINT

Body Will Urge St. Louis Convention to Have Plank for Suffrage in District.

A lively discussion of the woman suffrage question was precipitated at the meeting of the Washington Chamber of Commerce last night when a resolution calling upon District delegates to the St. Louis convention to try to have a plank inserted in the Democratic platform in favor of suffrage for the District, was introduced.

A motion to adopt the resolution had been seconded and a vote was about to be taken when Miss Mary O'Toole, prominent suffragist, who was admitted to membership of the chamber only the day before, and who was the sole representative of her sex at the gathering, voiced an emphatic protest against the resolution in the form in which it was offered.

"If you men want to get the vote in the District," she said, "you had better word that resolution so as to include votes for the women of the District, for you never will be able to get any favorable action by Congress until you do. Not only the women of the District, but the 4,000,000 voting women in the United States will do all in their power to help win equal suffrage for the District, but they will never support a measure that discriminates against the women as your resolution proposes."

Worded of Resolution.

Some one suggested to Miss O'Toole that the resolution offered provided for "suffrage in the District" which might be interpreted to include votes for women.

"It might be," said she, "but you know as well as I do that it is meant to win suffrage for men only."

After a considerable wrangle as to just what the resolution did mean, Albert Schultze, chairman of the committee on suffrage, who introduced the resolution, stated that Miss O'Toole's contention was justified, and that it was not intended to include woman suffrage, as his committee thought it inadvisable to endeavor to get woman suffrage in the District at this time.

A. Lettich Sinclair told Miss O'Toole the resolution did not mean that the Chamber was opposed to woman suffrage, but that it was thought best not to attempt to do so at once. "When the suffrage amendment now pending in Congress is enacted," said he, "and has been ratified by the necessary two-thirds of the States, that will be the time for us to get busy for woman suffrage here."

Others Take Sides.

Other men lined up on the side of Miss O'Toole and Mr. Clagett, and for a while it looked as if the woman suffrage side would win. When the vote was

AERONAUTICAL UNIT FURNISHES FEATURE

One of the spectacular features of the pageant was furnished by the aeronautical unit. It took twelve motor cars to transport this unit, which included one of the new Curtiss baby scout machines, which can attain a speed of 106 miles an hour.

On each of the floats of this section signs were displayed giving startling data on the unpreparedness of the United States in the aerial branch of its military organization.

The unit was contributed by the National Aerial Coast Patrol Commission, of which Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., is chairman.

Truck Carries Baby Scout.

The baby scout aeroplane was mounted on a high truck, drawn by four gayly decorated horses. With the machine was Ripley Bowman, an aviator, of the Aero Club of America, and four buglers who gave military calls along the line of march.

Some of the big signs on both sides of the eleven floats were very effective. For instance:

"One aviator and aeroplane today are worth 4,000 soldiers."

"Germany, France, and England now have 9,000 aeroplanes each; the United States has less than 100; Bulgaria, the size of Rhode Island, has 200. 'Nuff said!'"

"Aeroplanes are life-savers, not life-wasters."

"There will be aerial fire departments, ambulances, and passenger freight, and mail cars within twenty-five years."

The Arrangements Commission.

Members of the commission which arranged this unique demonstration are Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, chairman; Senator Charles F. Johnson of Maine, Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, Representative Julius Kahn of California, Representative Charles Leeb of Indiana, Byron R. Newton, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; William W. Ingraham, Assistant Secretary of War; Dr. E. Lester Jones, superintendent of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey; Prof. H. C. Frankland, chief forecaster of the United States Weather Bureau; Hon. Emerson McMillin, of New York; John Hays Hammond, Jr., and Earl Hamilton Smith, secretary.

POLICE PREPARED TO HANDLE CROWDS

Detail of Cavalry and Marines Aids in Patrol of Avenue for Parade.

MISS MARY O'TOOLE.

Long before the parade had started, police arrangement were perfected even to a more detailed degree than has been the custom in handling inauguration crowds.

All available men from the precincts had been drawn in. In addition the department has the services of fifty United States Marines, and 100 United States Cavalrymen.

The Marines reported to Lieutenant Headley of the bicycle squad, at 9 o'clock at Peace Monument, and the cavalrymen to Inspector Boyle at Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

They were then told off to different sections to aid the police in handling the crowds.

Most of the precincts are in command of lieutenants today, the majority of the captains being mounted and assigned to special parade duty.

By 9 o'clock, the ropes which had been laid out along the line of march, were hoisted, and Pennsylvania avenue closed to ordinary vehicular and pedestrian traffic, except that the Capital Traction Company was permitted to operate its cars west of Seventeenth street northwest. The last east bound car on Pennsylvania left Seventeenth street at 9 o'clock. At the Peace Monument the cars were permitted by the police to run as long as practicable. INGRAHAM AT HEAD

In the absence of Secretary of War Baker, the War Department division in the parade was headed by Acting Secretary William M. Ingraham, who was accompanied by his staff, made up of the bureau chiefs. Among these were Gen. H. P. McCain, A. L. Mills, H. G. Sharpe, E. H. Crowder and J. B. Aldrich.

The assistant bureau chiefs followed, and immediately after came the War Department Rifle Club, 100 strong. The sharpshooters were attired in dark coats with white duck trousers and white shoes.

The ladies' section gave additional color to the division. In immaculate white dresses, straw hats and red, white and blue cockades, the women clerks of the department made an excellent showing.

The men's section of the division, numbering about 600, brought up the rear. The American flag in silken colors and the official flag of the Secretary of War were the only emblems carried except the individual flags. The Municipal Band, of Baltimore, led the section.

BEST TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

S. S. S. Removes the Cause

Specialists have agreed that Catarrh is an infection of the blood. Once you get your blood cleansed of the Catarrhal poisons you will be relieved of Catarrh—the dripping in the throat, hawking and spitting, sores in the nostrils, and the disagreeable breath. It was caused in the first place, because your impoverished blood was easily infected. Possibly a slight cold or contact with some one who had a cold. But the point is—don't suffer with Catarrh—it is not necessary. The remedy S. S. S., discovered over fifty years ago, tested, true, and tried, is always obtainable at any drug store. It has proven its value in thousands of cases. It will do so in your case. Get S. S. S. at once and begin treatment. If you are a long-standing case, be sure to write the Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga., for free medical advice. They will tell you how this purely vegetable blood tonic cleanses the impurities from the blood by literally washing it clean.—Adv.

street and Fourteenth street were not disturbed by the order stopping traffic, special details of policemen being assigned to these points to expediate passing of cars through the line of march.

The Police Escort.

The police escort for the parade consisted of the major and superintendent, and Sergeant Harry, of the Tenth precinct, in command of twelve mounted privates. After their escort duty was performed, the policemen returned to assist in policing the line of march.

For the purpose of assisting marshals of the parade in the formation and alignment of divisions, Sergeant Weber, mounted, one foot sergeant, and twelve foot and two mounted privates, ten cavalrymen and ten marines were detailed. They reported to Inspector Cross at New Jersey avenue and B street northwest at 8:15 o'clock.

As soon as the parade passed First street east to Third street west, this detachment fell in as a rear guard, protecting the parade to the place of disbanding.

The section on B street north from First street to Third street west, was under the command of Police Captain W. T. Anderson, mounted. His duty it was to keep this locality free from obstruction so that there was no interference with formation of the parade.

That section of the route of parade on First street from B to Maryland avenue, along Pennsylvania avenue to the west side of Four-and-a-half street, was in charge of Capt. G. H. Harrison, of the Sixth precinct, assisted by 2 sergeants, 30 privates, 1 mounted private, 5 cavalrymen, and 3 marines. With this help, Captain Harrison had that section of the Avenue clear of traffic by 9 o'clock.

Captain Schneider's Detail.

From the west side of Four-and-a-half street to the west side of Eleventh street, was patrolled by 2 sergeants, 25 privates, 1 mounted private, 1 cavalryman, and 3 marines, under command of Capt. Henry Schneider, of the Ninth precinct.

The section lying beyond this and the west side of Tenth street, was under the supervision of Captain Flather, of the Eighth precinct, with a similar detail of police, marines, and cavalrymen.

From the west side of Tenth street to the west side of Thirteenth street formed the District over which Capt. Charles Peck, of the First precinct, had control. As this is one of the most congested localities on the line of march, he was given a somewhat larger detail, consisting of 1 lieutenant, 2 sergeants, 35 privates, 1 mounted private, 10 cavalrymen, and 3 marines.

An extra large detail was given Inspector H. L. Gessford, who was assigned to the last of the line-of-march sections, in which has been erected the reviewing stand. The inspector was assisted by Captain Sullivan, of the Third precinct.

Guard End of Line.

Capt. W. F. Falvey, of the Seventh precinct, and Capt. Thomas Judge, of the Tenth precinct, both mounted, divided the territory beyond Seventeenth street northwest, where the parade will disband.

Patrol wagons were stationed at various points along the line of march to be immediately available in case of emergency.

Sergeant J. A. Williams was detailed to pay special attention to the President's reviewing stand, and to protect the occupants of the stand from embarrassment while going to and from the White House.
